HEALTHY BABY WEEK

APRIL 2 - 8, 1989

WHEREAS, Alaska's most precious resource is its young children, and the best gift the State can give them is a healthy beginning.

WHEREAS, adequate and continuous prenatal care is essential to a healthy beginning. To give more Alaska babies a better start on life, the State has introduced the Alaska Healthy Baby Project.

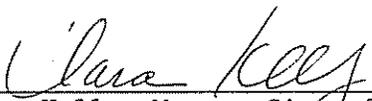

WHEREAS, the Alaska Healthy Baby Project expands the availability of Medicaid coverage for prenatal and infant care to hundreds of Alaskans who were ineligible under previous guidelines.

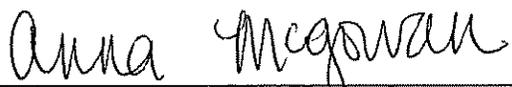

WHEREAS, the Alaska Healthy Baby Project targets the problem of infant mortality and health through a program of prevention and intervention.

WHEREAS, the Alaska Healthy Baby Project hopes to reach all eligible women in the State of Alaska through a public information campaign that emphasizes the importance of proper prenatal care.

To help inform all of Alaska's mothers-to-be on the importance of proper prenatal care and the availability of the Alaska Healthy Baby Project, now; Therefore, I, Clara Kelly, Mayor of the City of Bethel, do hereby proclaim the week of April 2, 1989, as Healthy Baby Week. I call upon the citizens of Bethel to observe this week with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 28th day of March, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and eighty-nine.
